"Would you like to hear a fairy tale?" asked Christopher Robin.

"Certainly!" said Pooh.

Once upon a time in the woods,
there lived a little bear.

His grandmother loved him very much.
She called him Little Red Riding Pooh because he wore a red shirt every day.

One day, Little Red Riding Pooh's mother asked him to take some honey to his grandmother.

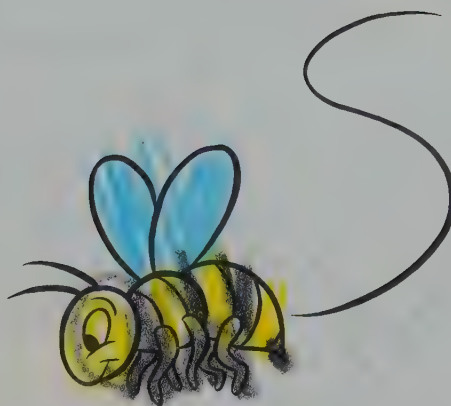

He promised he would stay on the path
and not speak to anyone.

Draw some goodies that you would like to take to someone.

Connect the dots.

After setting out into the woods, Little Red Riding Pooh met a strange-looking wolf.

"Where are you going this morning?"
asked the wolf.

"I'm going to Grandmother's house," replied Little Red Riding Pooh.

HONEY

“What do you have inside that big pot?”
asked the wolf.

"I've got yummy honey for my grandmother," answered Little Red Riding Pooh.

“That pot looks very heavy,” said the wolf.

"Do you know where the Six Pine Trees are?"
Little Red Riding Pooh asked. "My grandmother lives near them."

“The Six Pine Trees are just down the path,” said the wolf. “I’ll go ahead and tell your grandmother you’re on your way. You can stay here and pick some flowers for her.”

So Little Red Riding Pooh picked some flowers
for his grandmother.

Use the key to color them.

Little Red Riding Pooh sat down to rest.
He thought about how he had wandered off
the path and spoken to the wolf.
His mother had told him to stay on the path
and not to speak to strangers.

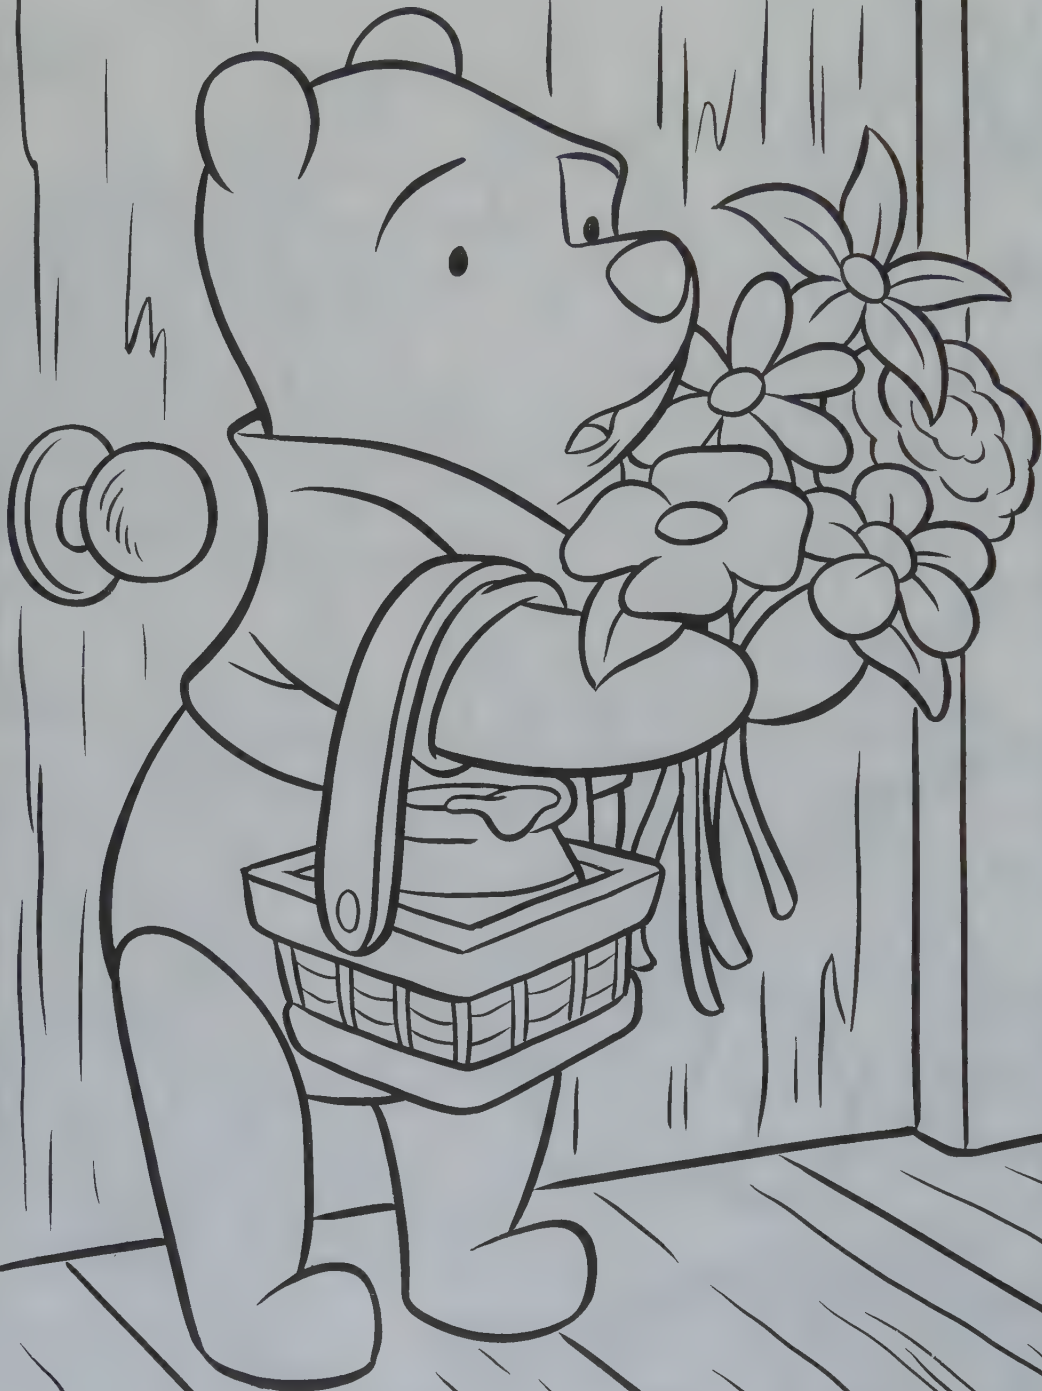

Feeling very sorry, Little Red Riding Pooh hurried back onto the path to get to his grandmother's house.

When Little Red Riding Pooh reached his grandmother's house, he found her in bed.
"What round, furry ears you have!" exclaimed Little Red Riding Pooh.

"The better to hear you with, my dear!"
said Grandmother.

"And Grandmother, what tiny little eyes you have!" said Little Red Riding Pooh.

“The better to see you with!”
answered the wolf.

“And Grandmother, what big paws you have!”

said Little Red Riding Pooh.

“The better to hug you with, my dear!”

replied the wolf.

“And Grandmother,” continued Little Red Riding Pooh, “what a big mouth you have!”
“The better to eat honey with!” cried the wolf.

HONEY

When the wolf finally tasted the honey, he didn't like it at all!

And when Grandmother came home,
she found out that there was a wolf in her house.

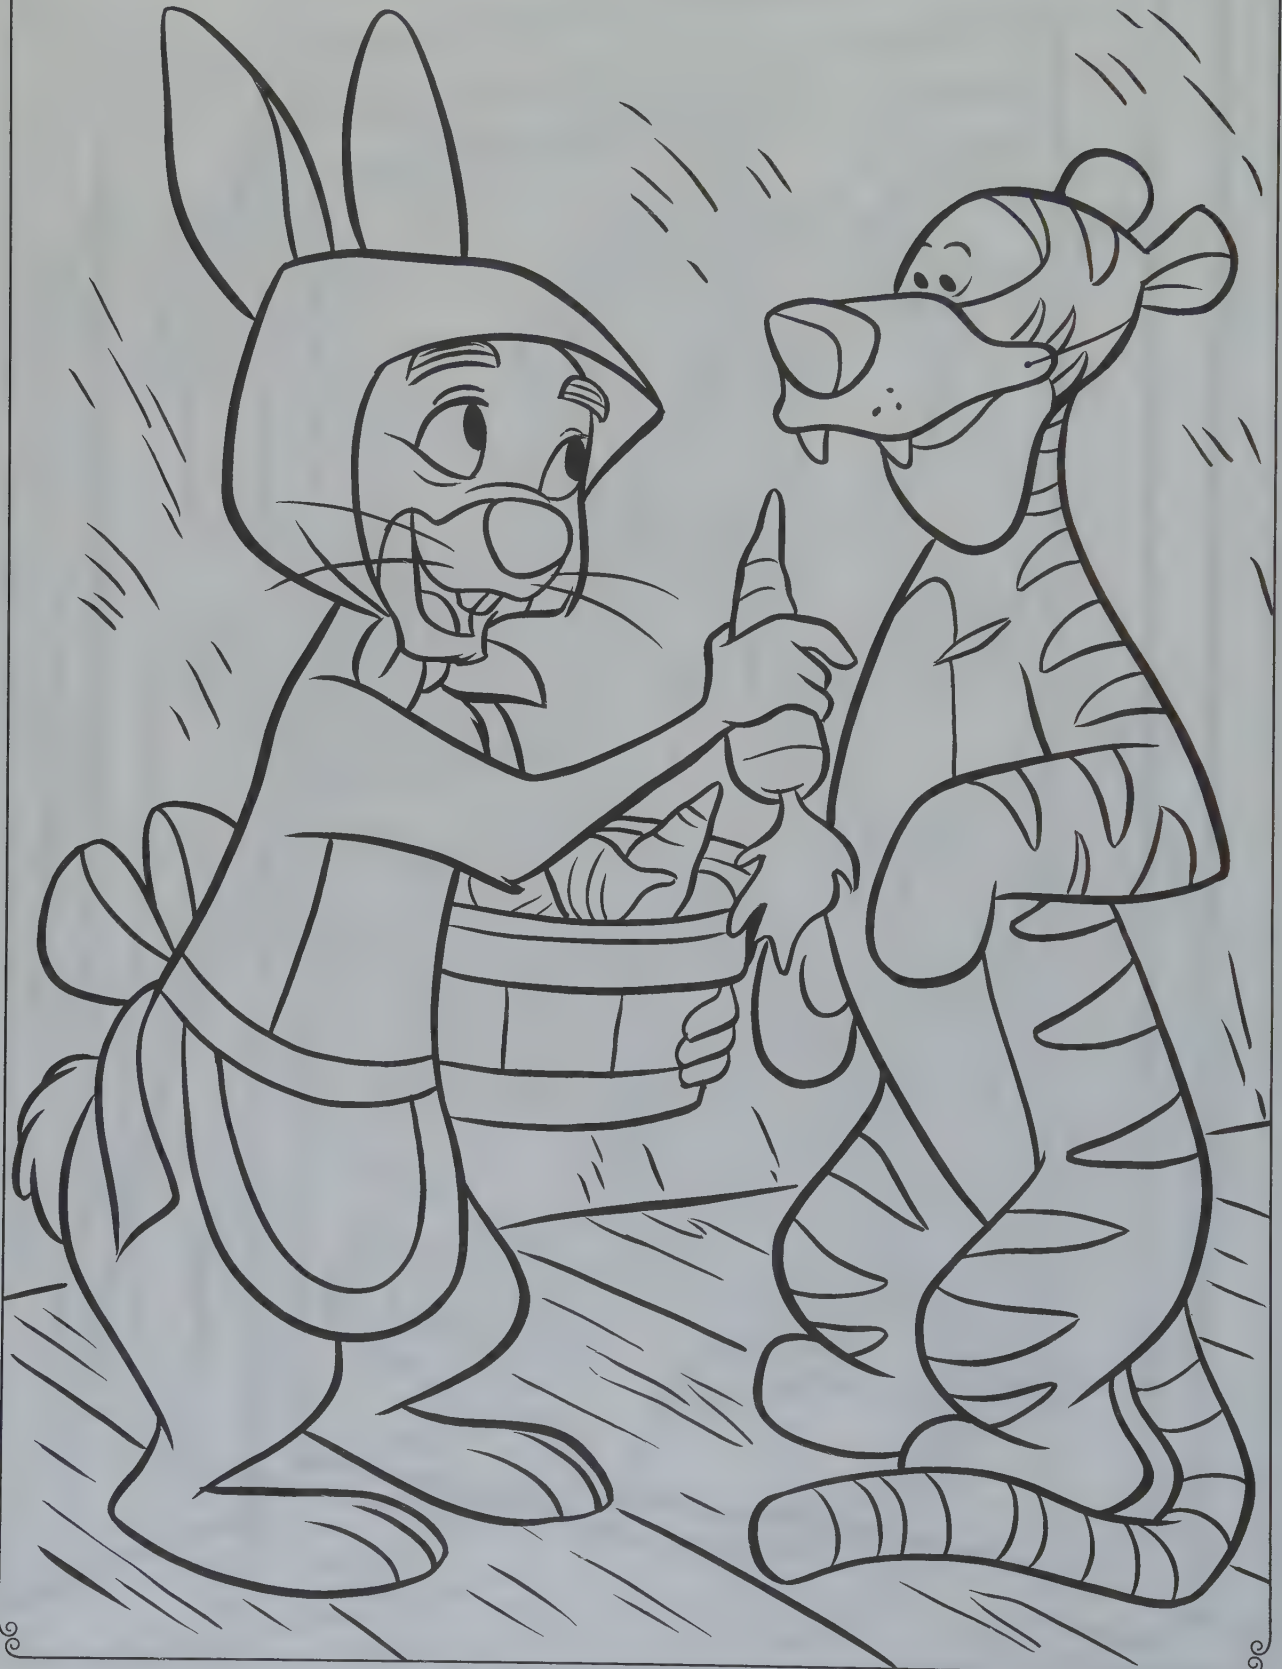

Grandmother knew just how to get rid of him.

She gave the wolf a carrot.

"It's much tastier than honey," she told him.

"Wolves don't like vegetables!" cried the wolf
as he bounced out the door.

When Christopher Robin finished the story,
Tigger said, "That wolf reminds me of somebody."

"And Little Red Riding Pooh reminds me of a Pooh Bear I know," said Christopher Robin.
